THRESHER EXPLODES, EARL KISER IS KILLED

Accident at the Charley Hutcheson Farm, West of Town, This Morning, in Which Youthful Engineer Loses His Life—Engine Blows Up and Body of Young Man is Thrown More Than a Hundred Yards.

THE YOUTH'S HEAD IS TORN OFF

Father Witnesses Accident in Which Son is Killed—Elder Kiser Owned Clover Huller. Which Had Gone to Hutcheson Farm to Hull Clover Friday—Three Others at Scene, but Escaped Injury—Engine Reduced to Scrap Pile.

LONG HUNT FOR BODY OF THE VICTIM

BODY IS THROWN OVER CLOVER HULLER BY FORCE OF EXPLOSION AND FATHER AND OTHER MEN LOOK FOR 10 OR 15 MINUTES BEFORE IT IS FOUND IN CORNFIELD—CAP DROPPED AT FATHER'S FEET AS SON'S BODY PASSED OVER HIM.

Earl Kiser, aged 15 years, was killed this morning at the farm of Charley Hutcheson, southwest of town, when the threshing engine of which young Kiser was the engineer, blew up. The young man was thrown more than 100 yards by the explosion. His head was torn off and his body badly mangled.

The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kiser, who lives near Fern Cliffs. The father is owner of the threshing outfit of which his son was engineer. The outfit was pulled to the farm of Charley Hutcheson, which is west of town on the Inter-urban line, yesterday afternoon at near 3 o'clock and began to thresh Mr. Hutcheson's clover. The work was not completed last night and early this morning the men went to the machine to finish their work before pulling to the farm of William Houck.

No Warning of Danger.

With Mr. Kiser and his son were Charley Hutcheson and a man by the name of Barnett, who lives on the Eppinghouse farm. Young Kiser fired up the engine and was sitting on the engine box, while the other men went to the clover huller, which stood several yards away. The men were cleaning the huller, preparatory to starting up the machine, when the explosion occurred.

Whether the water was low in the boiler or whether some other thing resulted in the explosion is a mystery. Suddenly, however, there was a terrible explosion and young Kiser, who was sitting on the box of the engine was hurled into the air. His head was torn off by the explosion and his body was horribly mangled. The engine was blown to pieces.

The three men, who were at the time standing by the huller were badly shaken up but fortunately were not struck by any of the flying missiles. Mr. Hutcheson's hat was struck by a piece of the flying wrecking and knocked off, but he was not injured.

Body Thrown Into Cornfield.

As soon as the explosion occurred, Mr. Kiser ran to the engine. It had been completely demolished by the explosion and was a pile of junk. Parts of it had been blown for hundreds of feet.

Finding no signs of his son there, he, together with the others on the scene began a search for the lad. It was 10 or 15 minutes, according to persons there, before the body of the victim was found. It had been thrown over the separator, which stood in the corner of the clover field, and over the fence into a corn field.

When the men finally found the body, a horrible sight met their eyes. The body had been literally blown to pieces. The head was nearly torn off and the other parts of his body were horribly mangled. The body was picked up and carried to the Hutcheson barn and an undertaker called. The body was then brought to Greencastle to be prepared for burial.

Cause of Explosion a Mystery. Mr. Kiser stated that he cannot understand what caused the explosion. He says that just a few minutes before the explosion he had gone to the engine and tested the water gage and looked at the glass. Both showed that there was plenty of water in the boiler. The engine at that time had 90 pounds of steam pressure.

Mr. Kiser was standing at the side of the separator which was about 75 feet behind the engine when the explosion occurred. As the body of his son flew through the air above him, but unseen by him, the cap dropped off of the boys head, and fell at the feet of his father.

How the others, who were at the scene escaped injury is a wonder. Pieces of the engine were thrown for yards in every direction.

No Funeral Arrangements.

Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon the arrangements for the funeral of Earl Kiser, had not been made. It is probable, however, that the body will be taken to the home near Fern tonight and the funeral will be tomorrow or Monday.

E-C? WELL, I GUESS YES!

A Battle Creek Cereal Company, started a campaign of advertising for their E-C Toasted Corn Flakes, in Greencastle the first of this week. They advertised that on next Monday a young lady, the "E-C Girl," will be here and will go from house to house. At each place she finds a box of the E-C Flakes, she will give the housekeeper a brand new $1 bill.

And she will do it, too. But she does not stop at every house. She stops at occasional houses. There is no system of locating the houses she shall stop at. Many dollar bills will be presented to Greencastle housewives next week, however.

Ask the grocers if they are selling any "E-C". Their answer will be, "E-C? Well I Guess Yes."

IT WAS AN 80-POUNDER

Camp Thompson, Worthington, Ind., August 21:— (To Editor of the Herald)

We are all well and having a good time generally have made a "good catch" so far and expect to be home next Tuesday, with some nice ones. I told you that we caught one 80 pounder and you called it in the Herald an 8 pounder, which was 72 pounds short. We have had a number of visitors out to see our fish as we have out stripped all the camps here in the arts of fishing.

Very truly yours,
H. C. Rudisill.

OPEN MILLS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

A dispatch from Pittsburg to the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The United States Steel Corporation has been ordered by the national committee to open at least two of its idle mills in Ohio, in order that matters may run more smoothly for the campaign of Mr. Taft. There who have kicked lustily against allowing the concern to be used so openly for political purposes, but after a hot clash they have gone out to open up the plants at Mingo and at Bellaire, in the Ohio district.

A feature of the case which makes it particularly distasteful here is that more than likely two mills in the Pittsburg district must be closed in order to allow the orders to go to the Ohio mills. When this feature of the case was brought before the members of the Republican committee, one of them said: "To H— with the Pittsburg district and Pennsylvania! We've got that state sure, but we will have to throw a little jolly into Ohio so those mills must be opened."

THE PANIC AT CLINTON

How the Hard Times of the "Flurry" Effect a Town With Mining Population—A Bad Situation.

NO WORK AND NO MONEY THERE

Clinton, a city of Vermillion county, is a mining center of importance. What the conditions there are is shown from the following from the Clinton Argus:

Excepting the "Flicker" period of "Roosevelt's Ready Relief," some months ago, Clinton has been comparatively in ignorance of the magnitude of the panic that has its grip upon the industries, but when the walk-out of nearly 2,000 miners came without warning, the rush and sweep of the panic has been so irresistible that many firms are in a critical condition. The miners are kept from real despair only by the hope that the $75,000 in the union treasury available for emergencies will tide them over until a settlement is made. However, the promise of a quick settlement seems to be rather remote, and it is beginning to permeate the minds of the more discerning that the miners have been tricked into a strike as an excuse to lay the blame upon them rather than acknowledge that the panic is the real cause for closing all the mines in this district.

Operators have been telling of the impossibility to sell coal in large quantities, or even get the cash for small quantities. The panic is on and the whirlpool of disaster sweeping on and on. One mercantile firm has announced the closing of its doors, two others are on the verge of bankruptcy, and others are tottering in the prices of breadstuffs and eatables are amounting skyward.

Twelve long years of uninterrupted Republican rule, high tariff and the building up of trusts from the wages of labor, has brought upon us the most disastrous panic in the history of this city. A few more months of high prices, no work and hunger will drive to desperation hundreds of enforced idlers, then will be repeated the bread riots of old, only with an hundred fold more intensity.

THE COMMISSIONERS MEET

County Fathers in Session to Consider the Matter of Appropriations For the Coming Year—To Report to County Council.

The county commissioners were in session today to go over the probable expenses of the county for the coming year, to plan appropriations, and to make ready for the meeting of the county council which will soon occur.

The appropriations decided upon as necessary by the commissioners will go before the county council, and will there be provided for or rejected. Upon the appropriations passed by the council the county levy will be based.

The task of anticipating the probable cost of the running expenses of the county is no light one and the commissioners were exceedingly busy this morning.

CRAWFORDSVILLE GETS IT

Redmen of the Wabash Valley Will Meet in That City a Year Hence.

AND IT WILL BE A HUMMER

The members of Scioto tribe, who attended the Wabash Valley powwow at Covington, were much pleased with the treatment tendered them by the Covington Redmen. The district is composed of Fountain, Montgomery, Boone, Warren, Clinton, Parke, Putnam and Tippecanoe counties, and owing to the fact that Covington is hard to reach by rail the attendance was not so large as usual. The crowd in attendance was such that there was no jam at any time, making it comfortable to get about the streets.

Crawfordsville was fortunate in securing the powwow for next year and it will be held as usual on the third Thursday in August. It goes without saying that the powwow of 1909 will be a hummer, as the local braves of the order of Redmen never do things by halves. There will be something doing all the time here next year from the time of the first war whoop in the morning of powwow day until the pipe of peace is smoked in the evening. Abe Hernley was the delegate from Scioto tribe and urged that the powwow be held here with his most persuasive eloquence with the gratifying result, which follows a successful appeal.

The first address of the day was made by ex-Congressman G. W. Cromer of Muncie, followed by C. A. Robinson of Greenfield, great hachem of the order of Redmen of the state. The public square was given over to the powwow. The Covington band furnished the music.

FUNERAL OF FRED L. GILL

The funeral at Fred L. Gill, one of the best known Red Men in Indiana, took place this afternoon at his residence, 212 Douglas street. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. Francis Bates, of the People's Congregational church. Burial was at Crown Hill cemetery.

Gill had expected to be a candidate for the office of grand keeper of records at the coming Grand Lodge meeting of the Redmen, having been very active in the order, though only thirty-four years old. His death occurred Tuesday night at the home of his uncle, near Greencastle. Nine weeks ago his physician advised open air treatment for pulmonary tuberculosis, from which he suffered, and Gill took up his residence in a tent on the farm. Gill had been advertising agent for the People's Outfitting Company for several years. His widow and one son, age ten survive.—Indianapolis News.

Defeat the Bedford Bunch in Game at McKeen Field by Score of 4 to 3 in an Interesting Game—Guests Were Entertained at a Smoker Last Night.

The Bedford Elks were defeated by the local lodge of Elks in baseball game played at McKeen field yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 3. The game was close and exciting throughout. The visitors were entertained at a "Smoker" at the Elks hall last night. The event was a most enjoyable affair.

DEATH OF FRED CUMMINGS

The death of Fred L. Cummings, aged 58 years, occurred at his home just south of Cloverdale last evening of typhoid fever. Mr. Cummings had been a resident of Cloverdale township for many years and was one of that township's most respected residents.

The funeral will be tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Christian Church in Cloverdale. Mr. Cummings leaves a widow.

LOCKRIDGE STEERS SOLD

Eighty-six Head go to the United Dressed Beef Co. of New York and 60 of These Bring Top Price—Delivered Here Next Week at Home Weight—To Be Shipped to Chicago.

THE PRICE IS $6.50 A HUNDRED

Alex Lockridge has sold to the United Dressed Beef Co. of New York, 86 head of his choice beef cattle. The cattle were sold yesterday, Thomas Murry, of the United Dressed Beef Co., being here to close the deal. James Frazier, representing the Clay Robinson Commission Co. of Chicago, was the agent in the deal.

The cattle averaged 1350 in weight. Of the 86 beefs 60 were sold at $6.50 a hundred. The other 26 went at $6.25. The cattle were sold at home weight to be delivered in Greencastle.

Six dollars and fifty cents a hundred at home weight and delivered at Greencastle is more than equivalent to the top price, which was 6.90 at Chicago yesterday. The freight and shrinkage on the cattle, if they were shipped to the Chicago market would more than average 40 cents a hundred.

This makes the fourth year that Mr. Lockridge has sold to the same company, which is always anxious to get his beefs. The cattle are three year olds. They will be shipped to Chicago next week.

THE DELINQUENCY OF THE MARSHAL

Although the city Marshal, whose duty it is to look after the welfare of the city by prohibiting the disregard of any laws or ordinances which are drafted to protect the citizens, has been told of the every day violation of the speed law by the Interurban line cars, Mr. Reeves, stated this morning that nothing would be done in the matter unless the residents of Seminary street would secure the evidence against the company and file affidavits against the company.

The Marshal need go no further than to ask the Seminary street citizens regarding the speed of cars. Specially the citizens who have small children in their families. They all will tell him that in their opinion, the cars run a speed of from 10 to 25 miles an hour down Seminary street. Any Seminary street resident will tell him that.

Is it the place of the private citizens, business men, most of them, to get watches and time these cars? Is it their place to look after the law breakers? What are the police officers for?

Mr. Reeves states that he is "Too Busy" to investigate this matter. He is not too busy, however, to go out of town at every opportunity to look after "Detective?" business which is entirely out of his territory and regular duties.

He has time to go to his farm and look after his private business and time to stand on the corners and talk of passing events, but he has no time to look after the interest of mothers who live on East Seminary street, who live in dread every day, in dread of having the lifeless body of their child brought home, the victim of an Interurban car. Again we say, whose duty is it to investigate the alleged disregard of the law by the Interurban company? Is the personal opinion of virtually every Seminary street citizen not worthy of consideration? It is the duty of citizens to take up the matter of law enforcement? What is the City Marshal employed for? What are his duties? Is he simply hired to arrest some harmless foreigner, who has perhaps indulged in too much liquor, to take every thing he has; every cent of money, and perhaps his watch, when the man has harmed no one or endangered the life of no one?

But Mr. Reeves says that he has ridden on the cars, himself, and that they do not exceed the limit. Does he expect the motorman and conductor to exceed the speed limit when they know he is a passenger on the car?

Shall the mothers continue to worry or shall the Marshal continue too busy to look after the enforcement of the laws?

Marshal Reeves, busy Marshal Reeves, might go to Brazil some day when not too busy and question the officers there, regarding the methods pursued in the fight of that town against the excessive speed of the Interurban cars. The Marshal there supplied his officers with stop watches and detailed them to time the Interurban cars. They did not time one and quit. They worked for days. And the city secured cases against the company. It is probable that the Marshal would have time to do this.

USUAL FORGETFULNESS.

The Lafayette Journal in speaking of the renomination of Governor Johnson of Minnesota remarks:

Winners are so scarce in the party that when one is found he deserves all the attentions a party can give. Since the monopoly of Bryan was established there have been few democrats to arouse enthusiasm and win victories. Even those who see in the ascendancy of Bryan the birth of a new democracy must admit that he has been the bright, and particular star; all aspirants for attention have had to follow the Bryan patterns. This has been a little hard on individuality and personality. Johnson is one of the few to win as Johnson and arouse enthusiasm as Johnson.

And yet the Journal would, doubtless, pose as being accurate and fair. If the Journal will recall, the men who have made good in political fights in the last few years are three to one Democrats. Made good, we mean, through their own efforts and personalities. Of Republicans, we can name, outside of Roosevelt, but two, Hughes and La Follette. The Democrats have Folk, Johnson, Douglass, Tom Johnson of Cleveland, and Glenn, of North Carolina, all of whom have made national figures of themselves through their own work for the people. The Democratic party is not short on men of personality and individual power. It is short on corruption funds and political machines and hence the number of defeats. We prophesy that after the next election Indiana will have added another great Democrat to the list in the personality and person of Thomas R. Marshall.

Possibly If City Marshal Reeves

is too busy to look after violations of law by the Interurban railroad company, whereby the lives and limbs of people are endangered, the duty could be delegated to the Secretary of the City Board of Health, as he is custodian of health and welfare of our people. And if he is too busy to give the matter attention, it might be well to delegate to the Churchhill or some other spy and chipper member of the "Street Gang" to attend to this very necessary duty of the City Marshal.

DEMOCRATIC NEWS

What Good Democrats Over the State Are Saying About Things Political in Indiana And Elsewhere.

HEARST'S ATTACK ON MR. BRYAN

The animus behind Mr. Hearst's "Independence party" is so plain that nobody can help seeing it.

Four years ago Mr. Hearst thought he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. He spent hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to get delegates, and obtained a few, but Democrats generally regarded him with so much dislike that when the convention met he had a ridiculous figure.

His ambition flouted, himself derided, made to feel unmistakably that Democrats would not take him into their councils, Mr. Hearst subsided. But not calmly, for rage was in his heart and a desire for revenge.

He saw after Parker's defeat, that Bryan would inevitably be the candidate in 1908. Bryan was the logical leader of the Democratic party, and when the party refused to have anything to do with Hearst, Hearst held Bryan responsible. He determined then to wreak his vengeance on Bryan this year.

By means of a vast expenditure of money, he built up an organization in various states, and last month had this pseudo-party nominate a candidate for president, at an imitation convention held in Chicago. Though he talks about purity in politics and freeing the country from boss rule, he hopes only to take enough votes from Bryan to make certain Taft's election. Bryan the enemy for whom he is lying in wait, knife in hand. His body is full of bitterness and hatred, and he longs to relieve himself by taking Bryan's scalp.

That this is true is evident from his newspapers, which have apparently forgotten all their old animosity against Republican leaders and are busily engaged in berating Bryan and the men who are managing the Bryan campaign. Hearst has nothing but harsh words for Bryan, whose honesty and sincerity he says he doubts and who, if elected, would be Hearst's charges, a helpless tool of

But Hearst's denunciation will not harm Bryan any more than it harmed William McKinley.

A few years ago Hearst attacked McKinley as fiercely as he is attacking Bryan today. He represented him as a deformed dwarf, carried around in the arms of Mark Hanna, who was made to appear as the incarnation of all that is evil. McKinley, president of the United States, beloved of the people, was shown as the official mouthpiece of corruption.

Did that hurt McKinley?

On the contrary, it helped him. The people resented Hearst's onslaught and gave McKinley their affection more completely than before. When he was struck down a universal cry of grief was heard, and even Hearst, affrighted by the expression of public esteem for the dying man, hastened to join the chorus of mourning.

Hearst's malice will not injure Mr. Bryan a particle. If it does not make votes for him, then human nature has greatly changed.—Chicago Journal.

***

The Republicans papers have been so busy with their fake "paramount issue" that they neglected to give attention to the failure of the Pillsbury-Washburn Milling company, at Minneapolis. After nearly twelve years of Republican control of all branches of the government, this great milling company was compelled to go into the hands of a receiver. Its stock and bond liabilities alone reach nearly ten million dollars. Its debts to the banks and others aggregated a large sum in addition, and it was upon petition of creditors that the receiver was appointed. Evidently that "Prosperity" wave that was started out by the Republican politicians July 1st failed to reach Minnesota, just as it failed to reach other localities where there have been large industrial disturbances.—Lebanon Pioneer.

A Pretty Warm Fish.

A well known fisherman was fishing for perch and was seated along the edge of a lake near the roots of a large tree, which was a favorite spot for the perch. Luck had been only fair, and he was debating on the question of hauling in the line and going home when there came a powerful tug.

He knew that he had a huge fish and struggled vigorously for twenty minutes before he landed his prize. It was a sunfish, one of the largest he had ever seen. He landed it on the bank, and then he noticed that the rays from the fish were so powerful that he was almost blinded, and the grass in the vicinity was shriveled up by the heat.

A few minutes later the man fell over. He had been sunstruck by the sunfish and was beyond hope.—Philadelphia American.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davidson, of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at The Owl Drug Store. 50c.

The Card Table.

John Duncombe, a noted English divine and man of letters, wrote about 1765 to this effect in one of his very illuminating essays on "Rouge, Whist and Female Beauty." He says, "The vigils of the card table have spoiled many a good face, and I have known a beauty to stick to the midnight rubber till she has grown as homely as the queen of spades."

Inspiring Hope.

The Doctor—Bear up. I must tell you the worst you can't possibly recover. The Client—That's a pity, for if I'd lived a bit longer I should have come into a fortune. ## How a Girl Throws.

Perhaps a better title would have been "How a Girl Doesn't Throw," because it is well known that a girl cannot propel a ball or anything else like a boy. Most people—and all boys—conclude that this defect arises from clumsiness, but that is a mistake.

The difference between a girl's throwing and a boy's is substantially this:

The boy crooks his elbow and reaches back, with the upper part of his arm about at a right angle of forty-five degrees. The direct act of throwing is accomplished by bringing the arm back with a sort of snap, working every joint from shoulder to wrist.

The girl throws with her whole arm rigid, the boy with his whole arm relaxed. Why this marked and unmistakable difference exists may be explained by the fact that the clavicle or collar bone in the feminine anatomy is some inches longer and set some degrees lower down than in the masculine frame. The long, crooked, awkward bone interferes with the full and free use of the arm. This is the reason why a girl cannot throw a stone.

First Victory of the Revolution.

The importance of the assault upon Fort William and Mary is generally overlooked by historians. The demonstrations against various British armed vessels, beginning with the firing upon the schooner St. John in July, 1764, as well as the battle of Alamance in North Carolina, in 1771, were essentially local and were so far removed from the Revolutionary period that they produced no appreciable effect upon the war itself. The "Boston massacre" was the repulse of a mob by a squad of British regulars, but at Fort William and Mary the royal standard was lowered for the first time, and the gunpowder taken therefrom was burned by the patriots at Bunker Hill. The king recognized in the daring assault the inevitability of the impending struggle. There is truth in the claim set forth on the tablet on the old Fort Constitution of today that the site marks "the first victory of the American Revolution."—Army and Navy Life.

A Pretty Warm Fish.

A well known fisherman was fishing for perch and was seated along the edge of a lake near the roots of a large tree, which was a favorite spot for the perch. Luck had been only fair, and he was debating on the question of hauling in the line and going home when there came a powerful tug.

He knew that he had a huge fish and struggled vigorously for twenty minutes before he landed his prize. It was a sunfish, one of the largest he had ever seen. He landed it on the bank, and then he noticed that the rays from the fish were so powerful that he was almost blinded, and the grass in the vicinity was shriveled up by the heat.

A few minutes later the man fell over. He had been sunstruck by the sunfish and was beyond hope.—Philadelphia American.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davidson, of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at The Owl Drug Store. 50c.

The Card Table.

John Duncombe, a noted English divine and man of letters, wrote about 1765 to this effect in one of his very illuminating essays on "Rouge, Whist and Female Beauty." He says, "The vigils of the card table have spoiled many a good face, and I have known a beauty to stick to the midnight rubber till she has grown as homely as the queen of spades."

A LAWYER'S FIRST LOST CASE

(Original.)
Myron Woodworth was an attorney just passing middle age. He was known as the lawyer who had never lost a case. Whether this was because he would not take a case that he was not sure of or was so resourceful that his opponents could never defeat him does not appear. The fact remains that until the Yardley case was tried no judge or jury had ever brought a final decision or verdict against him. Upon that case hangs a tale.

Mrs. Yardley died, leaving some $10,000 to a sister, Mrs. Hunt, who had nursed her in her last illness, cutting off her own daughter, Julia Scott, a young married woman living in a different place. Mrs. Scott undertook to break the will on the ground that her aunt had influenced her mother while under the effect of opiates to leave her property to the aunt. No one doubted up to the last moment that Woodworth would win, for he had established every point needed to establish his plea. There was but one more witness to examine, whose testimony was not supposed to be important.

The defendant's counsel called for Margaret Hunt, and the name was repeated by the clerk with no more reverence than he would have spoken the name of a habitual criminal. There was a rustle of woman's dress, and a young girl—she was the daughter of the defendant—passed to the witness stand. Her very appearance begot an unconscious deference in every man in the courtroom.

Woodworth at the moment of her entrance was chatting with a fellow attorney. When he turned his eyes to the witness they rested upon a vision of loveliness. Not only he, but Judge, jury—indeed, every one in the court—fell under the spell of her presence. In a voice low and sweet she responded to the questions put to her by the defendant's counsel, who elicited from her testimony which if not shaken might yet turn the case against the plaintiff. But those who knew Woodworth did not fear. It was upon cross examination that he was especially strong. Indeed, as he listened to her evidence he saw a weak point that destroyed its value. She had repeated in conversation she had heard between her mother and the testator in which the former urged the latter to leave her property to her daughter, Julia Scott. But the witness had said that she was not in the room and did not see those who were talking.

When Woodworth told the witness for cross examination and stood framing his first question a slight tremor passed over the girl, and she cast a quick glance at the judge as if to beseech protection. Then she turned her eyes back on the lawyer, bit her lip as if to gain courage and submitted herself to be tormented. She did not doubt for a moment that Woodworth would prove her a perjurer. "Miss Hunt," he said, "how far was the room in which you were when you overheard the conversation you have mentioned from the room in which the conversation occurred?" A troubled look passed over the face of the witness, and she did not answer the question.

The husband of the testator had been a physician, and his house—the house in which the conversation occurred—was fitted with a speaking tube between the front door and the doctor's bedroom. His widow occupied the bedroom to which the tube led. Miss Hunt, standing at the front door directly before the lower tube mouth awaiting admittance, had heard the conversation through the tube. Woodworth knew this and was prepared to make the statement appear improbable. He might force her to admit that she was not in the house at all, then deny her a chance to tell how she had overheard the conversation.

He stood looking at the girl, who looked at him with all the gentle reproachfulness of a fawn regarding a hunter about to plunge a knife into its throat. Then her eyes became dimmed with tears.

Woodworth's case was lost. All he had to do to win it was to draw out the girl's testimony so as to make it appear to the jury a weak invention. He knew in fact, as well as by her guiltless bearing, that she spoke the truth. At the moment of triumph he gave up victory, gave up his client's case, which he was in duty bound to win.

"Let me see," he said, looking down at some notes he had made on a bit of paper. "Perhaps I can get it in another way."

The other way did not lead to the speaking tube or to anything that would compromise the witness. After asking a number of irrelevant questions he released her from further examination.

Every one wondered. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant. Woodworth went from the courtroom to his office, where he wrote a note to his client informing her that the case had been lost through his own fault and inclosing his check for $10,000.

But if the attorney lost the man hoped to gain. Every man has an ideal for his wife. It is seldom that the ideal is realized, but when Woodworth saw Margaret Hunt in the witness stand he recognized something more than he had ever pictured in his imagination. He sought her out and eventually married her. He says that if he lost the case in which she was a witness and $10,000 he won a blessing that no success could equal. Besides, he has made up the pecuniary loss many times over.

EVELYN D. WITWORTH.

His Inspiration.

The negro brass band connected with the traveling troupe was blating a tune in its characteristic slap bang style in front of the theater when a dusky cornet player who had been sulking all day suddenly quit blowing and did not resume.

"Say, Mose," demanded the leader in the ensuing pause, "ain't yo' workin' any mo'?"

"Ah is w'en Ah gits de inspiration," retorted the sulky musician, throwing the whites of his eyes across at the leader.

"W'en am dat?"

"W'en Ah gits mah las' week's pay."—Kansas City Independent.

A Famous Poison Mystery.

England had a famous poison mystery in the last century. Two members of a great club in Manchester, both men of position and keen politicians, each received, apparently as a New Year's gift, small boxes containing a few cigars of the very highest quality apparently. Both were taken fearfully ill after smoking, and one of them subsequently died. The cigars were found to be loaded with poison, and it was said that the man who recovered only did so because he used a cigar holder. The facts were at first hushed up, because, as was said, the suspected sender, whose motive was revenge on account of a lady, was a man of wealth and power. But this subject was cleared, and the mystery was deepened by the following circumstances: A rich Manchester merchant, traveling one day in a railway car about the time of the incident related, got into conversation with a most agreeable and highly cultivated stranger, who finally offered his cigar case. The Manchester man was found at Leeds almost unconscious and the only occupant of the carriage. He grasped in one of his convulsed hands the cigar he had been smoking, and after analysis showed it to be identical with the others. He recovered, but the stranger was never discovered.

Easy Way to Be Generous.

In a church of a New England village was an old man who had all the Christian graces save one, and that was the grace of liberality. He would do anything in the world for the cause of religion but give up his money. At the close of the financial year 1899 the church found itself $400 in debt. A church meeting was called, and it was voted to circulate a subscription paper on the spot and endeavor to thus raise the sum needed. This was done, and the old gentleman did not put his name on the paper. The result was rather disheartening. $200 only having been pledged. Silence reigned for a moment, when one of the most generous men in the church moved that "we double our subscriptions." Instantly the old gentleman was on his feet and with extraordinary fervor cried, "I second the motion."

He evidently felt that he was thus doing his part in hastening a most desirable result.

Would Follow His Example.

After the battle of Prestonpans a witty Scottish farmer amused himself by writing a ballad upon it, which so stung one of the English officers, who had behaved very basely on the occasion, that he sent the poet a challenge to meet him at 11 for mortal combat.

The second found the farmer busy with his hayfork and at once delivered the challenge of the redoubtable hero. The good natured farmer, turning toward him with the agricultural implement, coolly said:

"Gang awa' back to Mester Smith and tell him I hae nae time to come to 11. To gie him satisfaction, but that if he likes to come here I'll tak' a look at him, and if I think I can fecht (fight) him I'll fecht him, and if I think I canna fecht him I'll just do as he did—I'll run away."
